Applications Open for the 2025 John Oliver Simon Award Celebrating Young Poets

Las Vegas, NV (July 1, 2025) – The 2025 John Oliver Simon Award is officially open for submissions, inviting emerging poets to share their voices and imaginations. In its latest cycle, the award continues to celebrate poetic talent in students as they navigate their transitional years.

This year's schedule will unfold in two rounds, designed to support growth and creativity through revision and performance opportunities. All submissions are judged anonymously. First-year winner and talented poet Lila Brissette will serve as judge of Round 1.

Key Dates for 2025:

- July 1 – Round 1 submissions open.
- September 15 – Round 1 submissions close.
- October 1 – Lila Brissette selects the top three finalists.
- October 11 – Round 2 submissions due from the top three finalists.
- October 28 – Poetry Promise Board selects award winners.
- Saturday, November 8 – Community reading features award winners at Winchester Cultural Center (3130 Mcleod Dr, Las Vegas, NV 89121) from 2:00 pm to 3:30 pm.

About the Award:

Named after John Oliver Simon, a passionate educator and celebrated poet dedicated to bilingual literacy and youth writing, the Award aims to spotlight new voices with a strong personal vision and a love of language.

"This award isn't just about a single poem. It's about encouraging growth and recognizing the courage it takes to share your truth at a young age," says a spokesperson for the program.

Winners will earn public recognition, perform at community events, and interact with established writers and educators. The competition also serves as a way to build a supportive community of emerging creatives and to encourage their continued growth in literature and beyond.

Poets interested in applying should prepare to submit original work by September 15th. The simple application is available here or in the Scholarships tab at <https://poetrypromise.org>. The final reading on Saturday, November 8th will feature the winners alongside leading local poets, showcasing their work and honoring their journey.
